

The WALT DISNEY Company

Europe, Middle East & Africa

Daniel Bamsey

Vice President, Technology, The Walt Disney Company EMEA

As Vice President, Technology, Daniel is responsible for managing the strategic direction of Technology for The Walt Disney Company EMEA. His ability to work across businesses and geographies is proven through his previous management of broadcast operations for the UK, Nordics, Central Eastern Europe and Emerging Markets.

He was also the driving force behind the operational transformation in creating a technical centre of excellence for the region, which is a business enabler for all Disney EMEA linear channels and future business models.

Daniel joined the Walt Disney Company in 1999 for Walt Disney Television International. He was promoted within the Technology and Broadcast Operations department working on the expansion of Disney Channels across EMEA and Japan. During this period, he lived in Japan project managing the successful launch of Disney Channel. He has a solid track record as someone who can define forward thinking strategies with a matched ability to implement them.
